Small Scale Conservation
Again, there is proof that conservation projects do not have to be vast and costly undertakings.

President Nixon has written Bowater Southern Paper company officials in commendation of the firm's plans for "pocket wilderness areas" at appropriate spots in its timberlands. The tracts will be preserved in their natural state to the greatest extent possible, traversed only by hikers' trails. They will be made accessible by the company's tree-harvesting operations in surrounding areas. Man is steadily encroaching upon the nation's few remaining true wilderness areas. Some cover vast expanses, some are small. No matter what the size, they should be preserved by planned protection before any sort of development begins since, once touched, they can never be really restored.

The Bowater firm is to be commended for making the most of its opportunities for conservation. —Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times

Navy's 'New Look'

The military has had a hard enough time developing weapons which aren't obsolete before they go into service. But it's even more hapless in trying to keep in tune with contemporary styles. After two and a half years of study, the Navy has decided to trim the bell-bottoms off working dungarees, and to replace fly buttons with that new-fangled thing called the zipper.

Of course, the irony is that when a sailor wants to change to "civvies," the likelihood is that he'll don flared-leg jeans with the "new" button fly. Anyone for pantaloons, cocked hats and buckle shoes? —Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal

Red Tide Strikes Fla. Beaches

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The worst outbreak of red tide in Florida waters in almost a quarter-century has left miles of Gulf Coast beaches littered with dead fish and many tourist-related businesses in a deep slump.

Called "poison water" by ancients who first noted it in 208 B.C., the red tide is a plant-like organism. It collects in patches and tints the water reddish-brown.

A toxin put off by the organism as it dies paralyzes fish which come in contact with it. It is not harmful to humans unless they eat fish or shellfish which have ingested the poison.

Mucky waters of the latest outbreak stretch 100 miles, from St. Petersburg south to Fort Myers.

Humidity and Heat Still High

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Thundershower activity in Arkansas continues to decrease, but the heat and humidity remain high. The only change which has taken place in the Arkansas weather is a reduction in the number of thundershowers observed in the state Wednesday.

Isolated thundershowers were indicated in Southeast Arkansas and none elsewhere in the state Wednesday afternoon.

Significant rainfall was reported further south along the Gulf coast where a weak low pressure area has produced some widespread shower activity.

High temperatures Wednesday were again into the upper 90s, with Fort Smith recording the highest at 99 degrees.

A cold front now in Central Kansas is expected to move near the northern border of Arkansas and should increase the chances of rain slightly on Friday.

Change in Hwy. 29 Plan Approved

Eight members of the 15-member Citizens Advisory Committee on State Highway Development in the City of Hope met yesterday with Carl McChesney, Planning Engineer for the State Highway Department, and John Tallant, District Engineer. The group met to study a suggestion of the Planning Division for changes on Highway 29 that can be included in the scheduled S. Main St. improvement project.

A plan has been made to connect Highways 4 and 29 east of Hope. Part of the original plan had called for Highway 29 to leave its present course near the Red River Vo-Tech, cross the Patmos Road near the Dixie Drive-In and then cross 23 St.

The new plan is to flatten the 90 degree curve past Berle Henry School into a 50 m.p.h. curve and use the old underpass there in lieu of an at-grade crossing as called for in the original plan.

The committee approved the plan, which will now be submitted to the City Board of Directors.

This Area Is Still Short of Moisture

Where moisture was adequate last week, crops and pastures in Southwest Arkansas responded well. Many areas, though, are still very short of moisture.

Extension Service Agents, in a series of individual county crop reports, made the following observations:

Cotton, rice, and soybeans in Little River County are responding well to late rains. Peanuts are up to a good stand but do have some thin damage.

The second cutting of alfalfa hay is short in Miller County due to rainfall shortage. Soybeans stands are spotty.

Rains July 1 and 2 helped all crops in Hempstead County but pastures and hay are short. Grasshoppers are still damaging grain sorghum in the Red River Bottom.

Recent rains in Howard County will improve the size and quality of peaches. The harvest

U.S. Trying to Weed Out Vietnam Officials Involved in Drugs Ring

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell says the United States is trying to weed out Southeast Asian officials who are involved in illicit narcotics traffic reaching American servicemen.

Mitchell, testifying Wednesday to a Senate government operations subcommittee, declined to name any of the Asian leaders under suspicion. But he said he would do so in closed session if he could get State Department clearance.

Meanwhile, across the Capitol, Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., told a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee that South Vietnamese Gen. Ngo Dzu, a staunch supporter of President Nguyen Van Thieu, is a "chief trafficker" in narcotics trade.

Dzu's involvement, Steele said, was mentioned in "hard intelligence" provided U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker. Steele and Rep. Morgan Murphy, D-Ill., who recently toured Southeast Asia, have estimated 10 to 15 per cent of American troops in South Vietnam were addicted to heroin.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, had asked Mitchell in the Senate hearing whether high civilian and military officials of Laos, Thailand, Burma and South Vietnam are involved in illegal drug traffic.

Group Asks Judge Why He Hasn't Fixed the Yellow Creek Road

Editor the Star: On Monday, June 14 when County Judge Finis Odom met with the Hope Lion's Club and gave a report on the conditions of Hempstead County, did he tell them about the Yellow Creek Road and what he promised in 1969 to do to this road and did nothing? If not, then we want to inform each member of this club and every citizen of Hempstead County the promises Judge Odom made concerning this road.

The Yellow Creek road is impassable after a hard or fast rain. Water runs across the black land bottom in several places washing the gravel off down into the meadows. This section of the road is approximately three-tenth mile. In other places on clay hills and curves after rains the road is so muddy and slippery cars slide off in the ditches. When this happens the drivers have to walk a mile or perhaps 3 miles for help to pull the cars out. This requires time and money.

Three joints of a concrete culvert have been broken off by the grader operators not raising the blades. This culvert is on top of a hill which has a slight curve making it a dangerous place should the school bus or large loaded truck meet another vehicle at this particular spot.

Instead of dragging out the old ditches along the road side, the operators have in some places dropped back 3 or 4 feet toward the center of the road, and made new ditches. This has narrowed the original road bed and caused water to run down the center of the road.

Late in the summer of 1969 Judge Odom was asked by the Saratoga School Board and several local citizens to repair this road and make it passable at all times. He readily admitted that it was a waste of money and time to the county to continue putting gravel on the flooding bottom when the first rain would probably wash it off. Judge Odom emphatically said the only thing to do was to raise the bridges and build a dump across the flooding bottom and at that time of the year it was too late to start this type work as the rainy season was near. He said he would start this work, first of all, in 1970 around the first of June if the weather was favorable and would replace the broken concrete culvert with a metal one.

Before the 1970 election Judge Odom got permission from all the land owners to build the new welfare plan, he said, would save California almost a quarter-billion dollars.

There has been involvement of government officials in some of these countries," Mitchell said. "We feel we have identified some of them and steps are being taken in some of these countries to eliminate their participation."

At the same hearing, Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard disclosed a broad amnesty program for veterans discharged as undesirable for using drugs.

Packard released the text of a memo he issued Wednesday telling commanders known drug users in the military must not be disciplined or discharged less than honorably if they are not implicated in other offenses.

The decision to grant "retroactive amnesty" on a case-by-case basis coincides with a Pentagon request that Congress allow discharged drug users to use drug-rehabilitation facilities in Veterans Administration hospitals, though their discharge may have been less than honorable.

The Army, Navy and Air Force, discharged 9,387 persons for drug abuse in 1969 and 1970 alone. Pentagon sources said 4,152 of those discharges were issued under circumstances it described as "less than honorable."

Only an honorable discharge entitles a former serviceman to full veterans' rights, including access to VA hospitals.

dump. They gladly gave consent for the dirt along the right of way. Before one land owner could get a letter of consent to the Judge, he eagerly, said his equipment was standing idle and waiting to start the work soon as he had a reply. He received a letter with the owners consent for dirt and right-of-way.

After Judge Odom was re-elected and no work started on the Yellow Creek Road he was asked about it. He said one of his operators was on vacation and the work would begin soon as the employee returned. A few weeks

Would Punish Deserting Welfare Dads

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Welfare reform legislation in Congress would guard against cheating and punish deserting fathers, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., told the California Legislature today.

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said "attempts to patch up the present system or to close its loopholes simply will not work and would lead to nothing but disillusionment and recrimination."

His speech was prepared for a joint session of the legislature.

Too many families are on welfare because the father left home, Mills said, and the bill passed by the House and pending in the Senate would not permit this.

"First, every penny that was paid to the family of a deserting father would become a debt which he owes to the federal government."

"Second, crossing a state line for the purpose of avoiding the responsibility to support a deserted family would be a federal crime."

He said eligibility would be controlled by suitable evidence requirements and income reporting procedures.

"Social Security and income tax records will be used to verify the accuracy of earnings reports and to avoid duplicate payments," he said. "A requirement for reapplication every two years emphasizes our intent that receipt of benefits should be a temporary status and not a way of life."

The new welfare plan, he said, would save California almost a quarter-billion dollars.

Depreciation Tax Break Is Attacked

By BILL NEIKIRK

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A court challenge to President Nixon's multibillion-dollar tax break for businesses has added new frustrations in his attempt to spur business spending, one of the economy's softest spots.

The tax break, in the form of liberalized depreciation rules, was attacked in a consumer-oriented suit filed in U.S. District Court here Wednesday.

Nixon disclosed the plan last Jan. 11 and assured businessmen at the time they could count on getting the faster tax write-offs, the heart of the regulations, retroactive to the first of the year.

But the suit could delay the break even further. It comes at a time when businessmen are projecting plans to spend only 2.7 per cent more on plant and equipment in 1971 than they did a year ago.

The administration wants to accelerate this low level of investment to speed up the economic recovery, concluding that liberalized depreciation rules will induce industry to spend more for modernization, thus creating more jobs.

The suit could delay or invalidate the tax break. But a assistant Treasury official, John S. Nolan, deputy assistant secretary for tax policy, said businessmen have no reason to hold back on their investment and spending plans because of the suit.

After public hearings, the Treasury formally adopted the new rules June 22. Basically, they permit industry to calculate the expected life of plants and machinery at 20 per cent below the current level. The effect would be to increase industry's income-tax deductions.

The loss to the Treasury over a 10-year period has been officially estimated at $39 billion.

The suit said the regulations are unconstitutional because the Nixon administration bypassed Congress in adopting them.

Besides Ralph Nader and Common Cause, a nonpartisan lobby, others joining in the suit were the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, the United Automobile Workers, Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., and Ramon L. Posel of Jenkintown, Pa., a real estate agent.

Wants School Plan to Be Thrown Out

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — A suit asking that the school desegregation plan under which the Blytheville School District is operating be thrown out was filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court here.

The suit, filed by three Negro parents, also asks that the board be ordered to recruit black teachers, coaches, band directors, administrators and to give them preference when vacancies are being filled.

John W. Walker of Little Rock filed the suit on behalf of Mrs. Emanuel Franklin, Mrs. Johnetta McKinney and Mrs. Bertha Thigpen.

The suit asks the court to require the board to provide the plaintiffs with copies of the existing desegregation plan and any plans for future implementation.

If such plans, after being examined by the court, are found defective in any way, the court should require the board to prepare for prompt submission to the court acceptable alternatives, the suit said.

The suit also asks that the board be directed to reopen Harrison junior and senior high school, which was a predominantly Negro school when closed under the present desegregation plan. The suit asks that the school be used as a component in the new desegregation plan.

U.S. Tells Hanoi That Peace Plan in Present Form Is Unacceptable

WASHINGTON (AP) — "If we can't keep our mouth shut, we don't have any chance at all to move toward peace," a top State Department official has told Congress in defending diplomatic privacy as a fact of international relations.

In private briefings for Congress, the policy is to give "the basic information on what's going on." But "there's no way to talk to the American people without others listening in," says Deputy Undersecretary of State William Macomber Jr.

Testifying before the House government information subcommittee, Macomber said Wednesday there is "a need to protect current negotiations—the best agreements open at the end were arrived at secret."

Copters Take Troops Into Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — Forty U.S. helicopters landed 1,500 South Vietnamese troops in the Parrot's Beak section of eastern Cambodia today for a new pincer drive against North Vietnamese forces and bases.

The troops were put down in a light rain six to nine miles inside Cambodia. They met no opposition initially.

The operation is centered about 65 miles northwest of Saigon. The force hopes to link up at Svay Rieng, on the Phnom Penh-Saigon highway, with a second force of 1,500 South Vietnamese troops moving south from Kompong Trach.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, commander of South Vietnamese forces in the 3rd Military Region, told Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen that the operation has four objectives:

—To trap a North Vietnamese sapper battalion of about 400 highly trained troops.

—To disrupt enemy communications.

—To find supply caches.

—To slow North Vietnamese infiltration into the southern half of South Vietnam, which Minh said has accelerated since the start of the rainy season in May. He gave no figures.

PARIS (AP) — The United States said today the Viet Cong proposal for a U.S. troop withdrawal by the end of the year in exchange for the release of war prisoners is unacceptable in its present form.

In their prepared speeches at the Paris peace talks, the Communist delegates made no direct reply to the U.S. stand. But the North Vietnamese said the plan offers an opportunity to the United States to get out of Vietnam with safety and honor.

The Viet Cong reiterated its position that the sooner U.S. forces withdraw, the sooner the prisoners of war can return to their families.

Ambassador David K.E. Bruce commented that the Viet Cong plan present last Thursday has "some new elements" that the United States and South Vietnam want to explore with the Communists.

Bruce suggested that the 121st session of the talks next Thursday be restricted—that is mainly secret—"free from the glare of publicity and without the need to make public statements except to the degree we mutually agree upon."

At the end of the meeting, Bruce told newsmen that he got a "decided no" to his proposal for a restricted meeting, adding: "I think they wish to continue to use these plenary sessions as a forum of propaganda."

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh of the Viet Cong said on leaving the meeting: "The American delegate tried to use the question of the nature of the meetings to evade the imperative demands of the people of Vietnam, the United States and the world."

Hanoi's ambassador, Xuan Thuy, commented after the meeting that the U.S. delegate "refused to give a serious response" to the Viet Cong peace plan. He said the American delegate was trying to deceive public opinion and block progress at the conference by refusing to set a date for withdrawal of U.S. forces.

Welfare Records Examined

LONOKE, Ark. (AP) — Pros. Atty. Sam Weems of Des Arc was allowed to examine welfare records in the Lonoke County welfare office Wednesday.

Weems, who has been working to dislodge from welfare rolls welfare-aided families who have able-bodied men who do not work, went to the office armed with subpoenas, but Mrs. Virginia White, 34, the county welfare officer, offered to make copies of the records for him.

"I would hope that from this point on I won't have to subpoena the records to see them," Weems said.

The 2.6 mile, four-lane segment of highway, built at a cost of about $2 million, had been under construction for about two years.

Senate Steps Up Fight on Cancer

By JOE HALL, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has voted to step up the fight against cancer by creating a new agency reporting directly to the president, but House passage is questionable.

The proposed Conquest of Cancer Agency, spending as much as $1 billion a year by 1976, would take over the work and personnel of the 34-year-old Cancer Institute of the National Institutes of Health.

Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., chairman of the health subcommittee which will conduct House hearings on the bill, says it might bring only a "cosmetic change" that could delay a cancer cure.

Although some senators voiced misgivings about the bill, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., was the only one voting against it Wednesday. The tally was 79 to 1.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., the bill's chief sponsor, said "cancer is the No. 1 health concern of the American People" and that a bold new program is needed to conquer it.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., another sponsor, added: "The country finds the rate of killing from this dread disease unacceptable because it believes a final drive will do the job."

"It feels we are so close to a breakthrough that a concentrated, unified program will achieve the final breakthrough."

The Senate measure is a compromise between versions proposed by Kennedy and President Nixon.

Although technically within NIH, the new agency would have independent status and report directly to the president.

The present Cancer Institute's budget of $332 million includes a $100-million increase proposed by Nixon and approved by Congress.

Kennedy foresees the new agency spending up to $1 billion a year by 1976, as recommended by a panel of experts from the Senate Welfare Committee.

Questioning whether there is solid evidence the Senate legislation could improve cancer research, Nelson said: "There just seems to be an emotional commitment that an independent agency will find the cure."

The Wisconsin senator said he fears the bill could lead to breakup of the NIH which he called the world's leading biomedical research center.

An aide to Rogers said the Florida congressman feels it probably is better to retain the Cancer Institute as an integral part of NIH, which has obtained more money and been given a higher priority to its work.

ly. "If we had a leak in the SALT talks as we had on the Pentagon papers, I can assure you that would have been the end" of these discussions with the Soviets on limiting strategic arms.

It is important to keep secret such matters as communications from foreign governments and military plans and operation, he added. "But if it is history, let's get it out."

As for the Pentagon's 47-volume study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, Macomber said, some of the information could have been declassified some time ago. The State and Defense departments, he added, were concerned about a "small percentage of material in there that would cause severe damage to the United States," about 10 to 15 per cent of the total documents.

Newspapers have refrained from publishing some of the material that caused the government its greatest concern, Macomber indicated.

Macomber said there is a tendency among some government secrecy-stampers to wrongly overclassify a document when they simply want to limit its distribution to certain persons in the government.

Macomber suggested roughly 10 to 12 years is long enough for much of the material to remain classified—although subcommittee Chairman William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., indicated he will seek a much shorter time spread for such secrecy.

Moorhead said there is an obvious need to balance the nation's need for security with the public's right to be kept informed on the actions of its government. The Nixon administration, Moorhead added, appears more interested in maintaining secrecy.

The chairman said he sees "potentially nasty ... implications" that the President's reported plan to cut the number of persons cleared for top-secret information could be used to purge those who dissent from administration policies.

SALT Talks Get Off to Good Start

By FRANK CREPEAU, Associated Press Writer

HELSINKI (AP) — The fifth round of the strategic arms limitation talks — SALT — between the Soviet Union and the United States got off to a good start today, conference sources reported.

They said the opening session at the Soviet Embassy indicated "strong, positive agreement to get ahead" and that both sides "seemed anxious to make progress on the basis of the May 20 announcement by both governments."

The May 20 announcement said the two nuclear powers had reached an understanding to concentrate this year on limiting deployment of antiballistic missiles—ABM—and also to agree on measures for offensive strategic weapons.

The first full session lasted about an hour and there was then an informal session of about 45 minutes. The next full meeting was set for Tuesday at the American Embassy and there was agreement that technical working groups would be set up.

The first meeting began with general statements by Gerard Smith, chief negotiator for the United States, and Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Semenov, head of the Soviet delegation. Both said Wednesday they were seeking concrete results in this round of talks.

LA Gets Convention Center

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After 31 years of talk about the need for a downtown convention center, the nation's third largest city finally gets one this week.

The eight-square-block, $41.8 million layout—whose central structure is a concrete rectangle painted light brown and off white—opens Saturday. City officials see it as a tourism bonanza.

They went ahead with the Los Angeles Convention-Exhibition Center despite objections that the downtown area lacks sufficient hotel rooms to support large conventions, and that the tax-financed operation is likely to lose money for years.

Others complained about the site in a rundown area at the southern edge of the downtown district. It was chosen despite strong support in City Council hearings for a location near the Civic Center in the heart of town, which is experiencing a high rise boom.

The central section of this city of nearly three million is indeed short of hotel space—only 4,000 rooms counting several small hotels and inns along with the Hilton and the Biltmore. Major conventions can require up to 15,000 rooms.

The American Legion, convening here in 1974, needs 11,000 rooms, and will have to scatter its members in hotels in Santa Monica and Long Beach, 10 and 20 miles from town.

The center's promoters aren't dismayed. They point out that downtown in changing, that a world trade center is planned near the convention center, and that plans are under way for at least two new major hotels.

Bookings for the first year run heavily to trade shows and banquets.

The facility can accommodate about 25,000 persons in 22 meeting rooms and two massive exhibit halls.

The center has no fixed seats; the two big halls can easily be changed into meeting rooms with use of partitions and chairs.

The center has 458,000 square feet. The major exhibition area—to be named "Sam Yorty Hall" for the city's mayor—contains 238,000 square feet, the largest column-free exhibition space in the United States. It can seat 15,000 persons.

Additionally, the center's $1.7 million kitchen and restaurant facility can feed 8,000 for a sit-down dinner in the main hall. And here is underground parking for 3,000 cars.

Performing Arts Are in the Red

By DONALD SANDERS, Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new federal survey indicates the country's 187 largest professional, nonprofit performing-arts organizations will spend $160 million this season and wind up $7.1 million in the red despite hefty contributions.

It estimates these groups during the 1970-71 season will have earned income from box-office sales, fees for services and other sources of $90.5 million, for a gross deficit of $70 million.

This will be offset in part, the study finds, by $62.9 million in contributions from individuals, foundations, corporations, united art campaigns, grants from public agencies and endowment income.

The study made for the National Endowment for the Arts covered the 187 groups with annual budgets of more than $100,000.

The total included 20 ballet and contemporary dance companies, 31 resident theaters, 35 opera companies and 101 orchestras, including 28 major symphonies.

Revenue Plan Differs From Nixon's

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee will develop legislation to help local governments, "but it wouldn't look anything like President Nixon's revenue sharing," predicts Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark.

He indicated the eventual plan would be limited in time, would concentrate on the needs of cities and other local units, and would involve some congressional direction on use of funds made available.

He said it also might include authorization for the federal government to work out joint collection of federal and state income taxes. This could result in administrative savings for the states as well as encourage them to make greater use of income taxation.

Mills hinted one area in which local governments might be helped is in crime control. Reverting to a theme he emphasized Tuesday in a speech to the American Bar Association, Mills said: "I have no idea how much it would cost, but it seems as though something should be done, when businesses and individuals already are spending half a billion dollars more for private protection than the federal government budgets against crime."

Told of State Police "Kickbacks"

BENTON, Ark. (AP) — State Sen. Virgil T. Fletcher of Benton said Wednesday that he has been told of fiscal irregularities involving high-ranking officers in the State Police.

The senator, chairman of the Legislative Joint Auditing Committee, had said previously, he had privately received allegations of fiscal irregularities, but had not indicated what level of the department might be involved.

Fletcher said, however, that he has not accumulated enough evidence of financial wrongdoing in the agency to request a special audit.

The senator said he had been told that some "kickbacks" were involved and they supposedly went to some people very near the top in the organization.

Fletcher said he would not request a special, in-depth audit of the State Police unless he becomes convinced that the allegations can be proved, either from records or testimony.

Fletcher said that so far, about a half-dozen State Police employees, all of them troopers, have made the allegations in personal meetings or telephone calls with him, but all declined to testify openly.

"They're afraid they'll lose their jobs," Fletcher said. "They don't want it to be the end of their career with the State Police."

Fletcher said there was no way of proving at this time whether the allegations are true. "I'm not accusing anybody of doing something wrong," he said.

If he becomes convinced that auditors uncover wrongdoing through available records, he will ask for a special audit, Fletcher said.

He said he was aware that an "internal war" was going on in the State Police and that the allegations passed on to him could simply reflect this dissension, rather than truth.

Coronary Care Unit

Miss Dorothy Rayburn, who completed the four weeks course on Coronary Care in Little Rock, and is evening supervisor, checks the heart monitor at the nursing station. Through her training she can recognize abnormal patterns of the heart's tracings. The same tracing will be shown on the bedside monitor at the same time.

For demonstration Mrs. Pat Fuller, who completed the Coronary Care Course offered by Hempstead Memorial Hospital, attaches the electrodes to Paul Hollingsworth's chest so that she may read his heart tracing, or electrocardiogram, at the bedside or the nursing station. Mr. Hollingsworth is a practical nurse student.

Hempstead Memorial Hospital is understandably proud of its new two bed Intensive Coronary Care Unit. The first plan, when considering the unit, was for intensive care needed by the patient with a heart attack. These persons are given first consideration for use of the unit.

Coronary care nursing, or evaluating the person with a heart attack, is a relatively new concept for nurses. Prior to 1962 this was a physician's field only. Due to the need for immediate assessment of needs and prompt action in order to save the heart attack victim's life, nurses were given this specialized training. The nurse with coronary training must be adept at her work. She is expected to recognize abnormal tracings of the heart on the monitor or electrocardiogram. She must know the drugs used to correct heart abnormalities. She must understand her patient's emotional needs and those of his family. She must know and be able to initiate life-saving emergency measures. The conclusion, therefore, is that the nurse must be trained as a constant source of information for the physician as she is always

Urge Money for Child Feeding

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty senators, declaring millions of children may go hungry this summer, have urged the Nixon administration to release immediately millions of dollars they say were promised for a nationwide child-feeding program.

In a joint letter to George Shultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget, the senators complained the Department of Agriculture encouraged localities to expand their programs, then said it couldn't support requests for new funds.

The Agriculture Department announced earlier this week $18.1 million will be available for the program this summer, an amount the senators said is $15 million less than required, though they acknowledged it's three times as much as was allocated last year.

"We are concerned that millions of children in New York and Newark, in San Antonio and Los Angeles, in Minneapolis and Indianapolis, and in many other cities throughout the nation will not be fed this summer as promised," the senators said.

Television and Radio

By JERRY BUCK

AP Television-Radio Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Lee Majors, who's played almost exclusively in Westerns, says it's tough making the adjustment to contemporary young lawyer.

He was in "The Big Valley" series for four years and made his movie debut with Charlton Heston in "Will Penny." In the past season he was one of "The Men from Shiloh."

In the fall, Majors will costar with Arthur Hill in the new ABC Thursday night series "Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law."

"I can't get used to these suits," said Majors, touching the lapels of his conservatively cut, dark blue suit. He laughed and said, "I've been practicing tying ties all week. When I walk on the set I think I'm visiting on someone else's stage."

Majors, a dark bond 6-footer who turned down a pro football draft because of a college injury, plays a gridiron hero who earned his law degree between seasons. When he's finally benched by a bum knee his coach introduces him to Owen Marshall.

The show was cocreated by David Victor, who also created "Marcus Welby, M.D." The similarity does not end there. Marshall is a general practitioner of law in Santa Barbara, just as Welby is a general practitioner of medicine in Santa Monica. And each has a young and eager assistant who chafes at the bit.

Majors is not in the two-hour pilot movie, which will be shown on ABC a few days before the series premieres in September. After the network put the show into the schedule he was offered the part, along with several other projects, by Universal Studios.

"I wanted to get into something contemporary," he said. "I've missed some good film parts because producers don't think of me."

He did play a lawyer in the movie "The Liberation of L. B. Jones," and suggests, "I guess somebody took a look at that, and decided I could help 'Owen Marshall' a little bit."

After six years of mostly Westerns, Majors said it "feels different" to be on the set without the familiarity of saloons and bunkhouses.

"In a Western you have a habit of pushing your way through saloon doors," he said. "I had a scene where I had to go through the swinging doors of a police station and I almost pushed them open like I was going in for a shootout."

The inside of the head of the Statue of Liberty can accommodate 30 to 40 persons.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

WHY CAN'T PEOPLE TALK TOGETHER?

Dear Helen:

My boy friend and I plan to get married after we finish college. But he has an idea that my parents are going to crucify him when he comes to see me.

I try to tell him they're just the quiet type, but he won't understand, and words come hard for me. Sometimes I also wonder if they like him. They say they do, but maybe they just don't want to hurt me.

It's awful, not knowing where anyone stands and wondering who likes who when no one expresses a real viewpoint: kind of like reaching out to touch something and it isn't there. I'm such a quiet person I can only express my real thoughts in writing, but I worry a lot, wondering whether my parents and my fiancé will ever know and like each other.

What can I do? —L.A.H.

Dear L:

Stop wondering and start writing! You've probably assimilated "non-communication" from your super-quiet parents, but you can break this wall with a pen. Tell them in a long letter how much you yearn for "real talk," and honest opinions, even if they hurt. You might be surprised at how long they've been yearning, too. —H.

Dear Helen:

We have a rock group, and we've got a good name, but we'd like to be famous. Please tell me how we can get a good agent and get famous, or do we need to get famous first and then get an agent? —HELP

Dear Help:

You've got the cart before the horse. Don't dream of "getting famous" yet. Just concentrate on "getting good." When you're the best in your area—the next step is a combination of luck, push, work, and tremendous energy. An agent will accept you if he sees potential, so prove yourself with a local "name." And remember, that takes a lot more than getting together once a week for a rock session. —H.

Dear Helen:

I am a high school girl who likes a boy in my class. Only one thing: people are putting me down because he's black and I'm white.

I don't see what's wrong with this. God made us equal and a person's color doesn't reflect what kind of human being he is. I wouldn't like Mike any more or any less if he were white. He's a wonderful guy, with lots of ambition and a big understanding, and we can talk together better than most people can.

Why can't a boy and girl of different races be friends? —NOT PREJUDICED

Dear Not:

They can! They can! And more and more people are becoming color-blind as prejudices dissolve slowly. It takes time to erase what centuries of wrong-thinking have etched on the mass mind, but your generation (and mine) have come a long way to accomplish it.

If you think "everyone" downgrades you, I suggest you read my column next month when my correspondents answer your letter. The majority won't be "Archie Bunkers," I guarantee. —H.

Hope Star SPORTS

Vida Blue Heads All-Star Pictures

By DAVE O'HARA
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Vida Blue, the Oakland Athletics' brilliant young southpaw, heads a nine-man pitching staff named by Baltimore manager Earl Weaver today to the American League All-Star team.

Weaver picked two of his faces, Mike Cuellar and Jim Palmer, and one pitcher each from seven other clubs for the 42nd All-Star Game with the National League next Tuesday in Detroit.

Leading the American League for the second consecutive year as manager of the champion Orioles, Weaver again ignored relief specialists, naming nine regular starters.

His failure to pick a couple of top relievers was blamed by many observers last year for the American League's eighth loss in a row, 5-4 in 12 innings.

Chosen with Blue, Cuellar and Palmer were Mickey Lolich of the Detroit Tigers, Sam McDowell of the Cleveland Indians, Sonny Siebert of the Boston Red Sox, Jim Perry of the Minnesota Twins, Andy Messersmith of the California Angels and Marty Pattin of the Milwaukee Brewers.

McDowell, however, has been sidelined with arm difficulties, and there were indications that Cleveland Manager Alvin Dark would ask Weaver to replace him.

Blue, Cuellar, Lolich and McDowell are left-handers with a combined record of 50 victories and 17 losses this season in games through Tuesday.

Palmer, Siebert, Perry, Messersmith and Pattin are right-handers with a 48-32 record. Earning All-Star honors in his first full season with Oakland, the 21-year-old Blue seems well on the way to the charmed 30-victory mark with a fabulous 17-3 record.

Cuellar, who pitched in the All-Star Game for the National League while with Houston in 1967, was named to the AL squad for the second time. He has won 12 of 13 decisions for the Orioles this season.

McDowell was chosen for the sixth time despite an 8-7 record. Perry, a 24-game winner en route to the Cy Young Award in 1970, was picked for the third time. He has a 12-7 mark.

Lolich, 13-6; Palmer, 10-4; and Siebert, 12-4, were named for the second time. It will be the first appearance for both Messersmith, 7-8 and Pattin, 7-9.

With starters voted by fans, Baltimore is assured of four representatives in the midsummer classic.

Joining Cuellar and Palmer will be third baseman Brooks Robinson and outfielder Frank Robinson.

First baseman Boog Powell was voted to the team but had to withdraw because of a wrist injury Wednesday. Powell was replaced by Detroit's Norm Cash.

Eleven reserves will be named by Weaver to round out the 28-player squad. Each of the league's 12 teams must be represented by at least one player.

S. Francisco Beaten 18-4 by Houston

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Willie? No, he won't.
So Willie Mays was lifted for a pinch-hitter for the first time in his illustrious career with the San Francisco Giants.

Rookie Ed Goodson struck out for Mays—but it didn't matter because the back-peddaling Giants were enroute to an 18-4 humiliation by the Houston Astros Wednesday.

"You can't expect one man to carry you for 162 games," said San Francisco Manager Charlie Fox after lifting Mays in the fifth inning with the Giants trailing 12-3.

Mays, the Giants' best clutch hitter since coming up in 1951, had never left a regular season game for a pinch-hitter, according to a team spokesman.

San Francisco's 40-year-old wonder player, the National League's starting centerfielder in next Tuesday's All-Star game, had a single in two at-bats before leaving the game. After a hot start this season, Mays has slipped to a .288 batting average and has just five hits and one run batted in during the last 13 games.

Despite the loss, the Giants gained ground on runnerup Los Angeles in the National League West as the Dodgers dropped a two-night doubleheader, 6-5 and 4-3 to the Chicago Cubs. San Francisco, which has lost nine of its last 12 games, now leads Los Angeles by four games.

The Montreal Expos rocked the New York Mets 12-7; the Pittsburgh Pirates clouted the Cincinnati Reds 9-3; the Atlanta Braves stopped the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2 and the San Diego Padres turned back the St. Louis Cardinals 4-1 in the National League's other games.

American League scores: Baltimore 4, Washington 0; New York 5, Detroit 3 in 11 innings; Chicago 2, Oakland 1; Milwaukee 8, Kansas City 2; California 3, Minnesota 1; Boston 4, Cleveland 0 in the first game and Cleveland 4, Boston 3 in the second game of a two-night doubleheader.

While Mays made news by sitting out, the Astros made hay against the San Francisco pitching staff with a 10-run, fourth-inning explosion and a six-run sixth.

Cesar Cedeno singled and smacked a two-run double in the fourth and slugged a two-run double in the sixth as the Astros poked 17 hits. The run production established a club record and every Houston starter except pitcher Larry Dierker had at least one hit, one run scored and one run batted in.

Jim Hickman drove in four runs with a three-run homer and single and Phil Regan provided ninth-inning relief help as Chicago beat Los Angeles in the first game. Hickman's bat helped build a 6-1 lead, but the Dodgers came back with a four-run ninth before Regan cut the rally short.

Billy Williams socked a two-run homer and reliever Oray Newman cut down a late Los Angeles uprising to give the Cubs their second-game victory. Williams' shot in the fifth inning gave the Cubs a 4-0 lead and their eventual winning margin. Veteran Juan Pizarro, pitching in his first major league game this year, walked two men with two out in the eighth before Newman came on to preserve the southpaw's victory.

Pitcher Carl Morton drove in two runs with a single and a home run as Montreal handed taping New York its seventh loss in eight games. The Mets, who dropped 6½ games behind front-running Pittsburgh in the East, contributed two errors, a wild pitch and a passed ball to Montreal's attack.

Gene Alley's two-run single highlighted a five-run first inning for Pittsburgh as the Pirates took their third straight game and saddled Cincinnati with its sixth consecutive loss. Roberto Clemente had a double and two singles for the Pirates, giving him 2,804 career hits and moving him into a tie with Zack Wheat for 10th place on the all-time National League list.

Rookie Earl Williams ripped two home runs and Ron Reed pitched a four-hitter for Atlanta. Williams delivered a score-tying solo shot in the second inning, then blasted a two-run homer in the fourth to break a 2-2 deadlock and put the Braves in front for good.

Nicklaus Is Still Confident

By JOHN FARROW

Associated Press Sports Writer
SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Jack Nicklaus headed into the second round of the British Open golf championship today smiling ruefully but still speaking with confidence about his chances of picking up the ancient crown for the third time.

"If you can take bogey sixes on the last two holes and still be only two shots behind the leaders, then it can't be all bad," said Nicklaus, who won the title last year in a playoff against Doug Sanders.

"Frankly I don't want to discuss the greens. We all know what they're like. It's the golf course we came to play, so let's play it."

The greens at Royal Birkdale drew criticism earlier this week for being too wet and soft. By midday, footprints of golfers who played the course in the early morning have dried, causing bumpy spots on the putting surface.

Nicklaus shot a 71 in Wednesday's first round over the 7,080-yard, par 35-38-73 layout and found himself two shots behind the man who beat him in the playoff for the U.S. Open at Merion in Ardmore, Pa.—Lee Trevino.

Nicklaus and Trevino were bracketed as 4-1 joint favorites for the title involving most of the top names in golf.

Trevino, Howie Johnson of Palm Desert, Calif., who is playing in his first British Open at the age of 46, Britain's Tony Jacklin, winner of the U.S. and British Opens two years ago, and Argentina's Vicente Fernandez shared the lead with four-under-par 69s.

Australia's Peter Thomson, bidding for his sixth victory in the British Open, shot a 70, as did former U.S. Open Champion Billy Casper and Kel Nagle, the veteran Aussie who won the title at St. Andrews in 1960.

Two men whose names don't often crop up in world golf also were at 70. They were John O'Leary of Ireland and Liang Huan Lu of Taiwan, who has won the Philippines and Thailand Opens.

Gary Player and Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina were two shots off the pace with 71s. Charles Coody, the U.S. Masters champion, slipped to a 74 along with Dave Stockton, winner of the U.S. PGA title in 1970.

The field will be cut to the low 80 after today's second round. Then it will be reduced to the low 60 for the climactic round Saturday.

PITCHING (9 Decisions) — Ellis, Pitt., 14-3, .824, 2.11; Gullett, Cin., 9-2, .818, 2.74.

STRIKEOUTS — Stoneman, Mtl., 148; Seaver, N.Y., 143.

THE BEST GIFT OF ALL!

For every fisherman who has tangled with and landed a scrappy fish there are countless kids who will never know such thrills. In every town lives youngsters who will miss the precious memories that come from "just fishin'" unless some fisherman shows them the way. A few lures and that "beat-up" old rod and reel would be "super" to these less fortunate. So find an eager kid, give him or her some tackle, and teach them the things you've learned about fishing. You'll feel better all over. Best of all, you will have bridged the "generation gap!"

NL All-Star Pitchers Are Named

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pitching comebacks by Juan Marichal of San Francisco and Steve Carlton of St. Louis have landed them on the National League squad for baseball's 1971 All-Star Game.

Marichal, 10-5 with the Giants and Carlton, 11-5 for the Cardinals, were among the eight pitchers named Wednesday by Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson, who will direct the National League against the American League All-Stars next Tuesday in Detroit.

Probably by the most notable omission by Anderson is Los Angeles left-hander Al Downing, who has bounced back from oblivion in the American League to lead the Dodgers' staff in victories this season.

Marichal, the veteran right-hander of the Giants, was named to the All-Star team a ninth time. He was left off the team last year, when he struggled to a 12-10 record.

Carlton, 10-19 last year, will be making his third trip to an All-Star Game. He's the only left-hander on the 1971 pitching staff.

The other National League pitchers will be Tom Seaver of New York, Larry Dierker of Houston, Ferguson Jenkins of Chicago, Dock Ellis of Pittsburgh, Rick Wise of Philadelphia and Clay Carroll of Cincinnati.

Seaver is the only returnee from the National League staff of last year. He has been on the All-Star team all five of his seasons with the Mets and shows a 10-4 record this year.

Arkansas 3-2 Over San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — San Antonio pitcher Jim Bryan knows all about elation and gloom.

Bryan collected his first hit of the season — a solo homer — Wednesday night to break a scoreless tie with Arkansas, then watched the Travelers win 3-2 on a ninth inning error.

Bryan struck out the first 15 Arkansas he faced before Skip Jutze advanced to first in the sixth on an error. Jorge Roque singled in the seventh to spoil Bryan's effort.

Wayne Dees singled Roque home in the ninth for the tying run and scored the winning run on a miscue by San Antonio catcher Ron Drake.

Winning pitcher Jack Stripling gained his eighth victory in 13 attempts while Bryan slipped to 5-3 for the season.

The Travelers were 3½ games ahead of Memphis in the Central Division of the Dixie Association. The Blues halted Albuquerque 6-4.

In other Dixie action, Dallas-Fort Worth blanked Shreveport 2-0, Amarillo defeated Birmingham 3-0, Savannah stopped Jacksonville 3-1 and Montgomery swept a doubleheader from Columbus 1-0 and 6-5.

The Charlotte-Asheville game was postponed because of rain.

Sons of Hodges, Berra in Baseball

MARION, Va. (AP) — Two youths whose fathers' names are household words in professional baseball are trying to break into the sport in the Class D Appalachian League.

Gilbert Ray Hodges II, son of the New York Mets manager, is a budding first baseman for the Marion Mets. And Lawrence Alley Berra II, son of the equally famous Mets' coach, is an aspiring catcher.

Both Hodges and Berra are 21 and both are having their first fling at pro baseball after three years in college. Young Hodges attended Montclair, N.J., State and Berra has been a student at C. W. Post College on Long Island, N.Y.

Do they feel any pressure just because their dads' were famous ballplayers?

"It's not as bad as I thought it would be," says Berra, who is fighting a weight problem.

"We don't expect any special favors," chimed in young Hodges. "It wouldn't make any difference if my dad was the manager or the owner. It's all the same for everybody on this club."

Berra checked in at 214 pounds but now is down to 205. He hasn't played yet, but, says Manager Chuck Hiller, "He will get in there when he gets down to 200 pounds."

Hodges is batting .300 after nearly three weeks of play. He was drafted by New York and Berra was signed as a free agent.

LUCKY NUMBER

More players in the Pro Football Hall of Fame wore jersey No. 14 than wore any other number. Don Hutson, Otto Graham, Y. A. Tittle, Link Lyman, Curly Lambeau and John McNally all wore 14 at one time during their pro careers. No. 11, with five Hall of Fame wearers, is second.

A group of four met Tuesday to discuss the possibility of a Muzzle Shooting Tournament in the Hope-Washington area. Meeting with "Rusty" Ralston of the Arkansas Department of Parks and Tourism were J. W. Rowe, Chamber of Commerce president; Garland Medders, City Manager; and Paul Henley, Director of Parks and Recreation for the city.

The group met to discuss a possible site for the proposed tournament. According to Ralston, there are thousands of persons in the U.S. who enjoy shooting muzzle-loaded rifles and pistols and who travel hundreds of miles to take part in black powder tournaments. Arkansas has two-score or more devotees of this sport.

It is proposed that a memorial match, involving the names of such frontiersmen as Sam Houston, David Crockett, Col. James Bowie, James Black and others who made history at Washington, could be held.

An Arkansas shooter, who is a special assistant to the president of the National Muzzle-Loaded Rifle Association, has expressed interest in a three-day match, preferably during the first week in October.

Ralston estimated that between 40 and 100 shooters could be brought to Arkansas for the tourney. This would be a shot in the arm for Arkansas tourism and the match could perhaps become an annual event.

Game & Fish

By CHARLES BURTON

LITTLE ROCK, July 5 — At one time the White River of Arkansas was one of the most noted bass fishing streams in the United States. Then came the high dams on its upper reaches which drastically changed the temperature of the waters downstream, and White River trout fishing was born. Now the White is known primarily for its trout fishing, but some fishermen know that you still find some fantastic bass fishing along its lower stretches. One such man is Vernon Finley of Pine Bluff.

Finley, whose name is familiar and almost synonymous with good fishing to regular viewers of the Game and Fish Commission's Saturday evening television program "Arkansas Outdoors", is featured this month in OUTDOOR LIFE in an article by Charles Elliot.

Elliot, the southern field editor for OUTDOOR LIFE, recently spent a day with Finley, his wife Maurice, and their fishing companion Clifford Griffin, along with George Purvis and Dick Laurence of the Game and Fish Commission, fishing that stretch of the White River that winds from St. Charles through the White River National Wildlife Refuge.

The objective on this expedition was the scrappy Kentucky or spotted bass, that thrive in the lower reaches of the White, and they found the fish more than cooperative. Elliot tells the whole story in his article.

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

To continue talking about putting, which, after all, will account for probably half the strokes you take in a round of golf, the initial moves in a putting stroke are crucial. If you don't start the stroke well, it is very unlikely that you will stroke the ball into the hole or close to it.

As I do on other shots, I watch the back of the ball throughout my stroke—the part of the ball I want to hit. I will imagine two lines, the width of the ball apart, extending from the ball back as far as I want to take the putter on my backswing. Then I try to keep the putter moving right along those lines, straight back.

Also, when I address the putt I cock my head slightly to my right. That helps me keep my head behind the ball at all times. Instead of letting it move toward the hole upsetting my balance and rhythm. A steady head is vital to good putting. With your head slightly cocked, even if you move it.

the worst that is apt to happen is that your head will be sliding back where it should be anyway.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Baseball Hall of Fame was hesitant at first about admitting Leroy "Satchel" Paige, the hesitation-pitch star of the Negro baseball leagues, into its regular section at Cooperstown, N.Y.

But an announcement Wednesday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Paul Kerry, president of the Hall of Fame, said that Paige and other black stars of the pre-1947 era—would be given full membership in the main Hall of Fame rather than in a separate area.

Earlier this year, the Hall announced that a separate area of its museum would be set aside for players of the old Negro leagues. Paige was the first player so honored.

The selection of the slender, popular righthander was hailed, but the fact that he was going to be placed in a separate area drew large criticism. Paige, however, was not upset. "I don't feel segregated," he said. Following the announcement of the rule change, he commented: "I guess they finally found out I was really worthy. I appreciate it to the highest."

Paige pointed out: "you're supposed to be in the majors 10 years to get in the Hall of Fame. I barnstormed with the top players in the American and National Leagues. I guess they're putting that together with five years in the majors. That would make it 25 or 30 years."

Paige will be officially inducted into the Hall of Fame Aug. 9.

Hope Students Compete in Twirling Plant Permits Could Cause Pollution

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, preparing to issue thousands of permits for industrial waste discharge, has quietly barred the public from seeing whether those permit holders will pollute the nation's water.

"The public has no way of keeping us honest," a key official of the permit program said in an interview. "That's a chance they have to take."

Government officials and the industries will know how the permits stack up against water quality standards. But the public is being forced out of the game on a double play:

Guidelines commissioned by the Environmental Protection Agency set discharge standards in terms of industry's input of raw materials or its output of products. And the White House Office of Management and Budget has ordered these crucial input-output data be kept secret if that's the way an industry wants it.

Bert Printz, acting permit program director for EPA, conceded in an interview that the combination allows the public no way to see whether the conditions EPA writes into permits match its new antipollution guidelines.

"They (the public) can't tell if the permit corresponds to the guidelines, or is more stringent or less stringent than the guidelines," Printz said, "because they don't have access to the relating information."

The planned guidelines are the missing link between 1965 federal-state standards governing the quality of water in rivers, streams and lakes, and the government's regulatory power over discharges into those waterways.

An 1899 law designed to protect navigation has been interpreted by the courts in recent years as banning direct industrial waste discharges into waterways without a permit from the Army Corps of Engineers.

That part of the act had not been enforced until President Nixon ordered the Corps last Dec. 23 to start requiring and issuing permits, and gave the Environmental Protection Agency veto power over permits for environmentally harmful discharges.

To qualify for a permit, an industry must comply with state water-quality standards, most of which call for "secondary waste treatment or its equivalent." The forthcoming guidelines are meant to answer the question: "What is the industrial equivalent of municipal 'secondary treatment'?"

War Protester on Trial in England

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer
LAKENHEATH, England (AP) — The first American serviceman to be prosecuted in Britain for protesting the Vietnam war, Air Force Capt. Thomas Culver, goes before a court-martial today at this air base northeast of London.

Air Force sources expected the trial to last five or six days. Culver, a 32-year-old bachelor from Santa Barbara, Calif., was one of 168 U.S. servicemen who on May 31 delivered a petition to the American Embassy in London asking President Nixon to end U.S. military activity in Indochina.

Culver, a legal officer who served in Vietnam, was charged with violating Article 912 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice by taking part in a demonstration—against the rules for U.S. servicemen aboard—and soliciting others to take part.

The maximum sentence is a dishonorable discharge and two years imprisonment. Culver had been scheduled for regular discharge last month, but this was delayed.

Culver and his lawyer, Capt. Frank Wesson, contend that the embassy protest was not a demonstration. The protesters held no mass rally but instead assembled in Hyde Park and went to the embassy in small groups. Culver claims that this constituted a personal protest, with the men expressing their private views.

Two American agents, reportedly Air Force intelligence officers, photographed the protesters with telephoto lenses. The films were classified secret, flown to the U.S. Air Base in Wiesbaden, West Germany, to be developed, and the pictures were flown back to Britain.

Culver's court-martial was ordered by the 3rd Air Force headquarters after an inquiry at Lakenheath last month. Witnesses told the inquiry Culver had been seen outside the base handing out leaflets about the protest.

Are You the Escalator of Success or the Toboggan of Failure?

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Are you on the escalator of success or the toboggan of failure?

Now and then it is wise to make a self-checkup.

But how can you tell for sure whether your life's star is brightening or fading? Well, some of the signs are pretty obvious.

For example, you can quit worrying about your status if— You have "his" and "her" tennis courts on your estate.

The workmen digging a bigger and better swimming pool in your basement strike oil.

When it comes time to get a new yacht, you sink the old one at sea rather than let something you once valued fall into the hands of strangers.

During National Brotherhood Week you make it a policy always to invite the U.S. secretary of the Treasury to lunch and listen to his troubles.

If you stay home with a heavy cold for more than two days, the New York Stock Exchange falls five points—and you receive get-well cards from several hundred worried brokers.

You average an honorary degree from a different college every year, and the board of education in your old home town names a high school after you.

You hate to run out of $10 bills, because you don't want anybody to think you are a poor tipper.

On the other hand, your prestige had slipped a country mile if—

Everybody else shuts up if you start to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner" with them.

When you shake hands with a man, the first thing he does when you let go is to wipe his hand with his handkerchief and then count his fingers to make sure he hasn't been short-changed.

When the bartender buys a drink on the house, he leaves your glass empty.

The only people who seem to know your name are bill collectors.

Both your teen-age children claim to be foundlings, because they don't want you to be recognized as their father.

Your credit is so bad that a hardware store won't sell you a piece of rope on time unless you agree to hang yourself with it as soon as you've paid the final installment.

Hearing to Be Held on Assessing

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A public hearing will be held July 15 at the state Capitol on the feasibility of using the site index system of assessing farm, pasture and timber land.

The system bases the assessment of land value on the productive capacity of the soil. The U.S. Soil Conservation Service has surveyed soil types in Arkansas and, if the site index system is used uniformly, rural land will be taxed on its ability to produce certain timber and agricultural crops regardless of its actual use.

The hearing will be at 10 a. m. in the governor's conference room.

tion of the guidelines by private firms, specifying that they "be stated in terms of pollutants produced with units of production or unit of raw material ... for example, pounds of suspended solids per ton of steel." Meanwhile, the Corps of Engineers and EPA were hastily drafting the application forms industry had to file by July 1.

Early in May, government officials held a public meeting with industry spokesmen to discuss what should be on the application form. Then, in a closed discussion, government officials decided plant input and output figures should be considered business secrets if that's how an applicant wants it.

In other words, the standard might be pounds of pollution per ton of steel, but the public need not be told how many tons of steel a plant uses or produces.

J.J. Lankhorst, the Corps' assistant general counsel, who participated in those meetings, said: "The Office of Management and Budget insisted on this, that this type of information should be protected."

That office has statutory authority over contents of federal forms.

Lankhorst said he was un-ware the EPA "effluent guidelines" were being based on these input-output figures.

EPA sources said the first guidelines are nearing publication to cover three major industries: petroleum refining, dairy product processing and fruit and vegetable canning and preserving. Guidelines on 15 other major industries are being prepared.

SO YOU WANT TO BE

By ERNIE HOOD

Allen T. Oak Ridge, Tenn., writes: "My daughter, now in her senior year in high school, is trying to make some decisions about her college work, and I'd like to help her. I believe some career field such as Dental Assistant would fit well with her abilities. Can you provide us with information?"

Dear Mr. T.: You've picked a winner. Employment opportunities for dental assistants are expected to be excellent all through the 1970s. Part-time opportunities also will be good.

Dental assistants work with dentists as they examine and treat patients. The assistant makes the patient comfortable in the chair, prepares him for treatment and obtains his dental records. As the dentist works, the assistant hands him the proper instruments and materials and keeps the patient's mouth clear by using suction and other devices.

Assistants may prepare impression and restorative materials for the dentist's use, and also may expose X-rays and process dental X-ray film as directed by dentists. Most dental assistants learn their skill on the job, although in recent years an increasing number have entered the occupation through posthigh school dental assisting programs.

These programs are offered in junior and community colleges or in vocational and technical schools. Employment opportunities also are expected to remain good for Dental Hygienists and for Dental Laboratory Technicians.

Joyce M., Novato, Calif., asks: "What is the outlook for a career as a librarian or as an accountant?"

Dear Joyce: The employment outlook for trained librarians is expected to be excellent through the 1970s. The same is true for library technicians. Accountants also can look forward to excellent career prospects.

Who Is Calling Whom 'Pig'?

A RAMBLING THOUGHT—One of New York City's few remaining sanctuaries is Central Park and with the warm weather people have been taking full advantage of it. Throughout the park hundreds of beautiful young people were making the most of a late spring day. Small groups sat around and talked, involved, caring about war, poverty and pollution. The day drew to a close and the beautiful people were gone, but Central Park wore the look of a defaced painting. Garbage became a foil to the natural setting. They left the streets of New York City to escape and then turned their place of refuge into another garbage dump. Maybe we should think twice before we use the word "pig."

A GIVE-AWAY DAY—To Sam Zimmerman from Huntington, W.Va., goes one of Youthbeat's favorite albums. "Big Brother & the Holding Company," because he took the time to write a nice, friendly letter. We're waiting to announce the grand prize contest winners of the NEA-Caraville Project Take Time to Get Involved, but first we're looking for three winners of Caraville watches. They haven't received their gifts because their addresses were lost in a shuffle. They are Karne Lichty of Santa Ana, Calif.; Dan Swift of Franklin, Pa.; and Linda Bickle of Lincoln, Neb. If anyone knows the mysterious whereabouts of these three people, let us know.

A LITTLE LAUGH—On June 22 the annual National Humor Conference and clinic for teen-agers will be held in N.Y.C. The meeting is supposed to examine the new comedy and the new breed of comedian and to involve youngsters in the "art of laughmaking." Teens who think they are capable of laughing their future away or parents of these talented wits are invited to attend. For more information, write George Q. Lewis, 342 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. In 1972 the humor conference for teen-agers will be held in late June in Washington, D.C., to discuss the teen-age voter and the use of humor in politics. By 1972 we'll probably need a good laugh.

RISE ABOVE—Well-known French composer-conductor Michel Colombier has come up with what may be called for lack of a better phrase a "contemporary symphony" in his album called "Wings." Lyricist Paul Williams, who has to his credit the Carpenters' gold record, "We've Only Just Begun," translated Michel's melodies into words and selected the name for the album. Williams says, "Wings" just represented to me the gift of freedom... of total freedom, being able to rise above our own frustration and fear." The album uses a jazz band, a full symphony orchestra and soloists to create the effect of blending jazz, rock and classical sounds.

Among the vocalists are Lani Hall - former lead singer from Sergio Mendez and Brasil '66 - Herb Alpert. Paul Williams, Vermetta Royster (lead singer of Sisters Love) and Bill Medley (formerly of the Righteous Brothers). Every once in awhile, the afternoon bridge game at New York's Cavendish Club looks like the final round of a national championship. The players today include Ira Rubin sitting East and Tobias Stone in the South seat.

Rubin's two-diamond overcall was sound indeed, but he believed in sound overcalls. Stone's jump to four spades was one of those multipurpose bids. He did not know which side could make what but he wanted to put pressure on his opponents. Of course, Stone was willing to have his partner bid a slam if his partner had a rockersher.

North had no problem and Ira decided to try to beat four spades, rather than sacrifice at five diamonds.

Ira overtook his partner's queen of diamonds with the king and decided there was just one chance to beat the contract. He shifted to his queen of hearts. Stone won with his king and saw that Ira was surely planning to get in with the ace of spades and put his partner on lead with a diamond.

It would have worked, since West held the diamond 10, but Stoney spoiled Ira's plan. He led his queen of clubs, continued with a club to dummy's ace and another high club. Ira ruffed, but Stoney was ready with the crusher. He chucked his remaining diamond. Ira scored that trick and got his ace of trumps later, but he never got to ruff a heart as he had hoped.

Every once in awhile, the afternoon bridge game at New York's Cavendish Club looks like the final round of a national championship. The players today include Ira Rubin sitting East and Tobias Stone in the South seat.

Rubin's two-diamond overcall was sound indeed, but he believed in sound overcalls. Stone's jump to four spades was one of those multipurpose bids. He did not know which side could make what but he wanted to put pressure on his opponents. Of course, Stone was willing to have his partner bid a slam if his partner had a rockersher.

North had no problem and Ira decided to try to beat four spades, rather than sacrifice at five diamonds.

Ira overtook his partner's queen of diamonds with the king and decided there was just one chance to beat the contract. He shifted to his queen of hearts. Stone won with his king and saw that Ira was surely planning to get in with the ace of spades and put his partner on lead with a diamond.

It would have worked, since West held the diamond 10, but Stoney spoiled Ira's plan. He led his queen of clubs, continued with a club to dummy's ace and another high club. Ira ruffed, but Stoney was ready with the crusher. He chucked his remaining diamond. Ira scored that trick and got his ace of trumps later, but he never got to ruff a heart as he had hoped.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I have a constipation problem. I was advised to drink two bottles of beer every night before retiring. I started this a number of years ago and it helped. Is there any harm in this? Will it cause cancer?

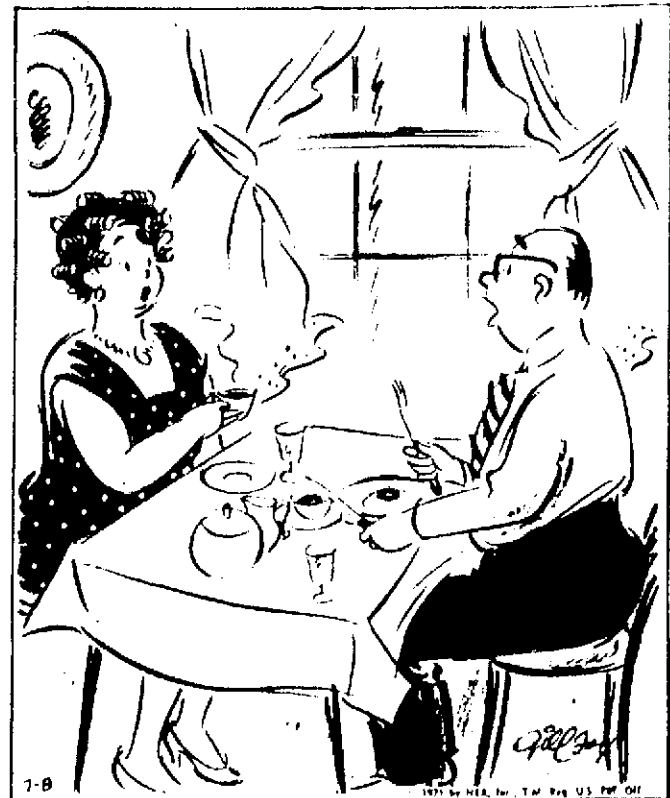

Dear Reader—I don't usually recommend the regular use of alcohol. However, there are certain medical indications for it. If two bottles of beer at night have relieved your constipation, that is better than becoming a slave to the laxative habit. Beer should not replace developing a good bowel habit and a proper diet. It also has lots of calories. Perhaps this is no problem to you but for some people it is. Beer does not cause cancer.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Is it possible for a rather fat young lady to carry a baby for nine whole months and not know of her condition until labor pains start and she goes to the hospital emergency room to find out what is wrong and the doctor tells her she is about to have a baby? She is 16.

Dear Reader—Yes, I've seen it happen in some young girls not so fat. Often the periods are not regular early in life and, if the girl isn't properly informed, it can be quite a shock for all concerned, particularly the poor girl.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am 67 years old. Every night I wake up with my head

Israel, Arab Groups Clash on 2 Fronts

TEL AVIV (AP) — Arab guerrillas and Israeli forces clashed on two fronts today while police and troops searched Arab villages for terrorists who fired rockets into a town nine miles west of Tel Aviv, killing two persons and wounding 20 others.

A military spokesman said guerrillas fired bazookas from Syria at an Israeli force in the occupied Golan Heights. An Arab was killed and an Israeli soldier was wounded in the ensuing battle, he said.

Another Israeli patrol came under bazooka and light-arms fire near Zarit, on the Lebanese border. The spokesman said the Israelis replied with artillery fire but no casualties were reported.

The rocket attack Wednesday night on Petah Tikvah, a community of 80,000, killed a 5-year-old girl and a woman. One rocket made a direct hit on a hospital for the chronically ill and three others ripped into a school and two houses.

All Arab villages within 50 miles of the city were put under curfew, and a number of suspects were picked up.

Reliable sources reported that the rocket launcher apparently used in the attack had been found and gave the location, but the military censor deleted the information from dispatches.

"The terrorists have found themselves incapable of attacking military targets and they don't seem to care where their shells fall," said Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, who visited the scene.

Townpeople mobbed him, shouting for revenge.

Dayan told newsmen the 130mm rockets had an average range of 14 miles and could have been fired from any of hundreds of uninhabited areas.

"The terrorists most probably came from Jordan," he said, "and probably had support from Arabs on the West bank." The Jordanian territory west of the Jordan River which Israel seized in the 1967 war starts five miles west of Petah Tikvah.

"As long as the state of war continues and terrorist activities persist," Dayan said, "it will be difficult to insure that things of this kind don't happen."

In case more rockets were fired fire-fighting units and ambulances sped to the scene.

The rockets fell in an area 200 yards square. The worst damage was at the hospital, where one of the shells hit a three-bed ward. A woman lost a leg in that explosion. One

Rehearing Asked on a Court Decision in Rules of Applying Law

By BILL SIMMONS
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A state Supreme Court rehearing has been requested in a brief which says the court's original ruling created confusion in the rules of law applying to some condemnation cases.

The confusion resulted when, according to the brief, the court overruled precedents, including one overruled by a "play on words."

The brief asserts that litigants should "be able to rely with assurance upon the precedents," and that, "Rules of evidence in such cases, firmly established in the precedents of this court, should not be lightly overturned."

John Harris Jones, attorney for Southern Development Corp., filed the brief July 1 for a rehearing on the court's ruling of June 21 in a land condemnation suit brought against Southern by the state Highway Commission.

The suit involved Southern's 8.3-acre tract of land fronting 940 feet on the Arkansas River north and east of Pine Bluff. The commission sought 1.60 acres in fee and a temporary easement on a section measuring 110 feet by 151 feet.

The commission had deposited $2,500 as estimated just compensation for the land. Southern claimed the total should be $634,000. A Jefferson County Circuit Court jury awarded $35,000.

The commission appealed, asking the Supreme Court to reduce the award to $3,500. Southern filed a cross-appeal, asking that the amount be raised to $207,500. The high court ordered a new trial, not yet held.

The land in question is near where the commission will relocate the Arkansas River Bridge at Pine Bluff.

In the first trial, Southern's president, Jim Hood, testified that the land was adaptable as a bridge site. He also testified that consulting engineers to the Highway Department had reported his land to be the most feasible site for construction of a bridge and that the next most feasible site would cost $831,500 more than construction on his property.

The Supreme Court's opinion was divided 4-3, with the majority opinion written by Special Justice Ben Core. A regular member of the court, Associate Justice Conley Byrd, did not participate on either side of the decision.

The majority opinion said Hood's testimony as to the adaptability of the land was permissible, provided he showed that a market existed for purchase of the land for a bridge site and that the commission's own action did not constitute a market.

The opinion also held that the department's engineering report was not a "fair and reasonable basis" for Hood's opinion as to the value of his land as a bridge site.

In a dissenting opinion by Associate Justice John A. Fogleman, the three-member minority agreed that in earlier cases involving similar circumstances the court had avoided reaching the result that was reached in this case.

Fogleman also wrote that the state's constitutional provision guaranteeing "just compensation" for land taken for public projects would be rendered meaningless if a landowner's property was condemned for use in a particular project and he was unable to prove that anyone besides the condemnor desired the land for the same purpose.

The majority opinion took note of the precedent cases. It also said that in one certain testimony allowed by the court "gets awfully close" to considering the value the land would have to the condemnor rather than the value it had to the owner.

In that case, the majority said, the court at that time may not have had sufficient appreciation for the line of testimony there "and we feel that it should be limited to its special facts."

In another precedent case, witnesses were asked to state the difference in the cost that would be involved in building a bridge at a point in question and at other points above and below. The court determined in that case that it would have been "less misleading" to ask the question a different way: "What were the pecuniary advantages offered by this point (of land) for building a bridge?"

In Southern's case, the majority said the implication of the language in the second precedent case "leaves the implication that both (questions) are misleading to some degree."

It also said that such a question could not be used as a guide for future use and its line of inquiry could not be permitted as proof of market value on a parcel of ground adapted as a bridge site.

Fitzsimmons Firmly Holds Teamsters

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Frank E. Fitzsimmons rode thunderous Teamsters convention support toward virtually certain election today to a five-year term as chief of the world's biggest and richest labor union.

The soft-spoken, 63-year-old "Fitz" confidently steered past scattered, preliminary opposition in winning himself a $25,000 salary increase to $125,000 a year, a $2 monthly hike in dues for the union's two million members and sole power to direct Teamsters political spending.

Fitzsimmons ignored the jibe of Theodore Daley, his only announced opponent for the union presidency, that the salary hike "is too rich for my blood." He defended the dues increase as vital to pay more than $5 million a year in strike benefits and other services to union members.

"If $125,000 is too rich for your blood, I suggest we need some new blood in this union," a Fitzsimmons supporter shouted at Daley, and most of the 2,100 delegates roared approval of the salary hike.

Fitzsimmons became president automatically June 21 when James R. Hoffa sent his resignation from his federal prison cell at Lewisburg, Pa., where he is serving 13 years for jury tampering and mail fraud.

In Washington, meanwhile, the U.S. Parole Board moved up its reconsideration of Hoffa's parole after more than four years in prison, amid persistent union rumors here that it was part of a deal with the government for Hoffa's giving up all his Teamsters posts.

Daley, 42-year-old secretary-treasurer of Yonkers, N.Y., Local 445 protested giving Fitzsimmons power to determine all union political spending.

"Brother Daley was never a friend of Jimmy Hoffa," shouted one convention delegate later when Daley tried unsuccessfully to write a $50,000 salary for Hoffa into a provision naming his honorary president emeritus for life. Daley's proposal was defeated resoundingly after Vice President Einar Mohn said it might hurt, rather than help, Hoffa's bid for freedom.

High union sources, who as late as convention eve still feared a disruptive pro-Hoffa emotional reaction against Fitzsimmons, expressed surprise at the ease of the transfer of power.

Nixon Wants Control Board Kept Busy

By MARK BROWN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell want to breathe new life into the Subversive Activities Control Board—an agency whose chairman admits it doesn't have enough work to keep busy.

By executive order, Nixon has given the SACB the job of identifying and listing organizations that seek violent overthrow of the government or violent interference with rights of others.

The list, formerly drawn up by the attorney general, supposedly lets federal agencies know what to look for when checking the background of prospective employees.

Membership in, affiliation or association with a group on the list "is a factor in determining whether the employment of a particular individual is inconsistent with the interest of national security," the Justice Department says.

Mitchell on Wednesday sent to Congress legislation to supplement the executive order and rename the SACB the "Federal Internal Security Board."

The list, commonly known as "the attorney general's list," was last updated in 1955 and the more-than-250 groups included range from the Abraham Lincoln Brigade to the "Yugoslav Seamen's Club, Inc."

Assignment to the SACB of preparing the list was announced the day after its chairman, John W. Mahan, told a Senate subcommittee: "We do not have enough to fill our time."

Says Time Important in Drug Curb

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said today that "time is critical if we are to wage a successful campaign against the widespread illicit traffic in and use of narcotics in America."
 McClellan's statement was in remarks prepared for delivery at a hearing on a proposed to create an executive office to mount a concerted government effort against drug abuse. The hearing is being held by the subcommittees on Intergovernmental Relations and Executive Reorganization and Government Research.

 "The thousands of addicts who walk our streets, who are incarcerated in our prisons, and who inhabit our overcrowded hospitals are a living testament of our failure in the past to deal effectively with this problem," McClellan said.
 He said the drug problem in America "reaches deep into the whole structure" of the country.
 McClellan said the government must find more effective ways in which to combat the

France Shuns New NATO Communication

BRUSSELS (AP) — President Georges Pompidou has decided against a step that would have brought France back closer to military integration with the United States, West Germany and its other North Atlantic allies, informed sources report.
 The decision was transmitted in a letter from French Ambassador Francois Tricouet de Rose to his colleagues on the North Atlantic Council. An informed official said the letter stated that France maintains its place in the alliance but would not join in the NATO integrated Communications System, or NICS. The letter was received May 26.
 "I don't know if it was the word integrated that put them off," one NATO official said. "If we had thought about it, we could have chosen another word."

De Rose's letter reportedly said the French government is going to improve its own communications system and it will remain technically compatible with NATO's. This would make it easier for France to join the integrated system at some future time.
 President Charles de Gaulle withdrew French forces from NATO's integrated commands in 1966, although French membership in the alliance continued. One of De Gaulle's strongest supporters, Michel Debre, is France's minister of defense.
 NICS is one of two projects that 10 of NATO's European members are planning in an attempt to dampen American criticism that the Europeans aren't doing enough for their own defense. The other project will provide better shelter for military aircraft against attack.
 Announcement of the plans last December was followed by a pledge from President Nixon not to reduce U.S. forces in Europe.
 The NICS project calls for the completion by 1980 of a modern communications grid, using satellites, radio and commercial land lines, for the use of both military and civilian officials of the alliance and its members.

Reverse Migration Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A multibillion-dollar program to reverse migration of America's rural poor to big-city slums was proposed today by eight senators.

"This legislation will underwrite with financial muscle the right of every American to have a free choice of where he shall live and make a living," Democratic Sens. Herman F. Talmadge of Georgia and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota said in a joint statement.

The measure would authorize appropriations averaging $200 million annually for 10 years to provide loans and up to $300 million a year for a subsidy grant.

Talmadge, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said the money would create jobs and raise family incomes by enabling small towns and rural areas to build industries and improve community facilities.

Rural America, he said, has been subsidizing for many years the crazy-quilt growth of cities and providing them with the best food bargains in the world.

"What we are doing today," he added, "represents an effort to start a new process by which some of that investment can be returned to rural America, not only for its benefit, but for the cities which have grown too large."

The House Agriculture Committee has opened hearings on the problem.

The bill defines a rural area as one outside a city of 35,000 or more population.

Asks for Money in Porno Fight

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—An organization seeking contributions to establish a $23,000 fund to help close sexually oriented theaters and bookstores in Arkansas has mailed letters to a number of residents asking for donations.

The letters were signed by Charles H. Keating Jr. of Cincinnati, a former member of President Johnson's Commission on Obscenity and Pornography. Keating describes himself in the letter as a lawyer who had decided "to spend some time to try to preserve this moral decency of America."

These Sweets Make Great Gifts

By MILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Homemade food makes perfect hearty welcome gifts for a new neighbor and tells a shut-in someone really cares. Homemade Banana Bran Muffins, Orange Marmalade and Chocolate Coconut Caramels are three nice ways to say, "Hi."

- BRAN MUFFINS
- 2 1/2 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
 - 2 1/2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
 - 1 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
 - 1 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 egg, beaten
 - 1 1/2 cup mashed ripe bananas (about 2 medium)
 - 1 1/2 cup milk
 - 3 tablespoons shortening, melted
 - 1 1/2 cups bran flakes with sugar-coated raisins

(Or use 3 1/2-cup sifted all-purpose flour; then sift dry ingredients together.)

Mix together flour, sugar, baking powder, soda and salt. Combine egg, bananas and milk. Add to flour mixture; then add shortening and mix only enough to dampen flour. Fold in cereal. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes or until muffins spring back when pressed lightly in centers. Serve with butter and orange marmalade, if desired. Makes 10 medium muffins.

Note: These muffins may be prepared at night and baked the next morning. Prepare muffin batter as directed and pour into greased muffin pans. Wrap pans in dampened cheesecloth, then in wax paper, and store overnight in refrigerator. Remove pans the next morning and let stand about 15 minutes, or while oven is heating. Bake as directed.

- ORANGE MARMALADE
- 3 cups prepared fruit (3 medium oranges, 2 medium lemons, 1 1/2 cups water, and 1 1/2 teaspoon baking soda)
 - 5 cups (2 1/2 lb.) sugar
 - 1/2 bottle liquid fruit pectin

First prepare the fruit. Remove skins in quarters from 3 oranges and 2 lemons. Lay quarters flat; shave off and discard about half of white part. With a sharp knife or scissors, slice remaining rind very fine, or chop or grind. Add 1 1/2 cups water and 1 1/2 teaspoon baking soda. Bring to a boil and simmer, covered, 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Section or chop peeled fruit; discard seeds. Add pulp and juice to undrained cooked rind. Simmer, covered, 10 minutes longer. Measure 3 cups into a large saucepan.

Bran muffins, orange marmalade and caramels are welcome gifts.

Then make the marmalade. Thoroughly mix sugar into fruit in saucepan. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim for 7 minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with 1/8-inch hot paraffin. Makes about 7 medium glasses.

- CHOCOLATE COCONUT CARAMELS
- 1 1/2 cups cream
 - 1 cup sugar
 - 3/4 cup light corn syrup

- 3 squares semi-sweet chocolate
- 1 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 cups (about) flaked coconut

Combine cream, sugar, syrup, chocolate and salt in a saucepan. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils. Continue boiling over low heat until small amount of mixture will form a firm ball in cold water (or to a temperature of 224 degrees), stirring constantly after mixture begins to thicken. Stir in coconut. Pour into lightly buttered 8x4-inch loaf pan. (Do not scrape saucepan.) Let stand until cold.

Mark caramels in 3/4-inch squares with knife. Invert onto cool surface, turning marked side up. Cut in squares, using full length of long sharp blade. Let stand in cool place 2 to 3 hours to dry. Wrap each caramel in wax paper. Makes about 4 dozen caramels.

later when inquiry was made about the work he said one of his employes had an injured leg but the road work would start when this employe was able to drive. Several weeks later when nothing was done to this road the Judge was asked again about it. This time he said his equipment was down near McNab doing some similar work and soon as they finished down there which would only be 4 or 5 days. After this, he would have the machines move on up to the Yellow Creek Road and start the work on the dump and bridges. The equipment never came up to the Yellow Creek Road and no work was ever started. After this last promise Judge Odom must have fallen into a state of complete silence because he has not mentioned the Yellow Creek Road again. In fact, a few weeks ago several Saratoga citizens wrote him concerning this road and asked for a prompt reply, but as of this date, have not heard from him.

This road is a well traveled one when the weather is favorable and is a rural mail route. A school bus travels part of it. There are 2 churches and 2 cemeteries along the road side. We think it is a disgrace to Hempstead County when a wrecker has to be summoned to hold a funeral at the Yellow Creek Community which has been done in the past.

The families who live at Yellow Creek must use this road getting in and out to buy groceries, going to doctors, hauling hay, timber and for many other reasons. Many times they have had to wait several hours for the water to run off the road before they could get back home. Friends and relatives hesitate to visit in this little community when the weather even looks rainy for fear they will get stranded over across the flooding bottom and would be forced to wait for the water to run down before returning home.

It is a shame that many loads of gravel wash down in the meadows and doing much damage to the land owner's field.

True, the Judge has put several loads of gravel on this road, but many more are needed to make it passable during all kinds of weather.

Since Hempstead County has the equipment and employes to fix this road the people in the nearby communities feel that an injustice has been made by this road not being repaired.

If these promises Judge Finis Odom made to these people were not political tricks to get re-elected to this office, then what were they?

Lansky Denies Allegations

TEL AVIV (AP) — Meyer Lansky says allegations that he is a leader in organized crime in the United States are preposterous. He also says he will seek Israeli citizenship and fight a U.S. government bid to revoke his passport.

Lansky, who has been in Israel for more than a year on a tourist visa, is under indictment in Miami, Fla., on charges of skimming pretax profits from gambling casino operations and of refusing to appear before a grand jury.
